Arrival of Stage at Inland Town Was the Event of the Day-Papers and New Arrivals

Writes of Famous Character

Few in Mexico, if any, can recall the days when the stage coach drove from worked in this city for several days, here to Paris, then an inland town. Tom Bodine, editor of the Paris Mercury, in the last number of his "Stories of Old Paris," writes of Dan Slater Sunday, when they alighted Wyman, the stage driver. The following is taken from the article: "Before the rail road came there to Kansas City, according to Train-
